In signal processing, the coherence is a statistic that can be used to examine the relation between two signals or data sets. It is commonly used to estimate the power transfer between input and output of a linear system.

Seismic Intensity and Fourier Acceleration Spectra: Revised Relationship Vladimir Yu. Sokolova) This paper presents a revised method for estimating the seismic intensity (MMI or MSK scale) using Fourier amplitude spectra (FAS) of ground acceleration.

Figure 9.1: DSP in a very small nutshell. The math that is done is the processing done to the digital signal. This could be a delay, an EQ or a reverb unit either way, it's just math.

The number of points to which the data segment is padded when performing the FFT. While not increasing the actual resolution of the spectrum (the minimum distance between resolvable peaks), this can give more points in the plot, allowing for more detail.

Highlights In this paper a general framework for Transfer Path Analysis is presented. The vibration transfer problem is derived conceptually, based on the admittances of the active and passive subsystems.
